Old Age Planners at Odds Over Compromise on Size of Pension

WASHINGTON — Oldsters throughout the country don't know it yet, but the Townsend Old Age Pensioners are seriously divided among themselves.

One group still sticks by the good doctor's original pension plan, insists on the figure of $200 a month or nothing.

The other group prefers a modified plan, has been working with Congressmen to put it through at the present session.

This compromise provides that the pensions to be paid shall be neither $200 a month, nor $150 or month, nor any other fixed sum, but whatever amount can be raised by the proposed 2 percent sales tax, plus other minor taxes. The plan still provides that those receiving the pension must spend it within a certain period of time, thus putting money in circulation.

This compromise plan got as far as a mimeographed release by the Townsend headquarters in Washington. A new bill was prepared for Congress. Copies were distributed to the press with Townsend's approval.

Then suddenly protests began to come in. There were not many of them, but they were violent in tone.

Townsend suddenly backtracked—withdraw his mimeographed statements, decided to stand by $200 monthly or nothing.

The compromise plan, however, still goes on. Nearly 100 Congressmen are behind it and the bill would have a good chance of passing the House if the Townsends were united.

Many of them seem more interested in the Townsend Clubs as a source of future political power and as a means of present livelihood than in framing a bill acceptable to Congress. The original Townsend Plan will not pass.

They point to the experience of radio station WOR in Newark, N. J. This station, celebrating stepping of power, offered listeners free lithographs of President Roosevelt.

Perkins-Congress Feud

Big Jim Farley isn't the only member of the Roosevelt Cabinet having trouble on Capitol Hill.

Miss Frances Perkins is also under fire.

Few details of this controversy have appeared in the press, but in some respects it is far more bitter and serious than the war on Farley.

Although personally unpopular on Capitol Hill, Farley is being attacked by only Senator Huey Long.

Miss Perkins on the other hand, is feuding with two major committees, the Senate Labor Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee.

With both bodies the cause of their hostility is essentially the same—resentment against Madam Secretary's bossy manner and her attempts to extend the bureau's jurisdiction of her department.

The Ways and Means Committee clash revolves about the social security bill.

As sent to Congress by the White House, the bill provided social security should be administered by the Labor Department.

But the committee vetoed this, placed the program under an independent board.

Judge Adkins' Decision Results in Appeal

Arguments and briefs were submitted in the common pleas court room, Wednesday, to the fourth district court of appeals judges in the appeal of Job Renick and others against the decision of Judge J. W. Adkins in the Williams estate case. Renick and a number of other persons are contesting Judge Adkins' decision which upheld a trust and ruled against the will of the late Sarah Williams.

Arguments were made by C. A. Weldon, representing Alice Ward, Scioto-twp., who, with others, benefits under the trust, while Charles Gerhardt and Charles Dresbach represented Mr. Renick and others who would benefit materially under Miss Williams' will.

There are eight other attorneys in the case including Charles H. May and C. A. Leist, who would administer the estate if Miss Williams' will should be upheld. Mr. Weldon came into the case upon the death of Barton Walters, who was the original attorney for Alice Ward.

On the appeals bench, Wednesday, were Judges W. H. Middleton, Peter J. Blosser and Russell McCurdy. Middleton, of Waverly, was presiding.

At the outset of the appeal presentation, all attorneys were instructed to be brief and to the point.

The Williams property is valued at nearly $125,000, an attorney in the case, said today. Much personal property is involved in addition to land in Pickaway and Marion cos.

Witnesses subpoenaed for the hearing were Ezra and Lissa Hill, Thomas Shepard, G. W. Morrison, Miss Anna Florence and Miss Mary Ebert.

Contract Signed In 1926

Judge Adkins in his decision rendered in November held that a trust allegedly drawn up by Miss Sarah and Mary E. Williams and Abram Williams should be enforced instead of a will written by Miss Sarah after the deaths of her brother and sister which occurred Aug. 1, 1928, and Oct. 21, 1928, respectively. She died March 16, 1931. The trust was signed July 28, 1926.

It said that the last survivor should make a will and specified to whom the property should go. The will of Miss Sarah Williams, it is charged did not follow the stipulations of the contract.

Judge Adkins spent much time and cited numerous authorities in upholding the contract signed by the trio.

It was not indicated when the court of appeals' decision was returned. The briefs submitted by the attorneys were lengthy and the judges indicated all would be read completely.

JURORS ACQUIT MOTHER OF SIX

CHICAGO, March 27—Mrs. Anna Erickson, acquitted of the murder of her tavern keeper husband George, returned to her brood of six children today.

After seven hours of deliberation a "sob-proof" jury returned its verdict of acquittal last night before Chief Justice Denis Sullivan of the criminal court. Seven ballots were required.

The state had demanded that the 40-year-old widow be sent to the electric chair.

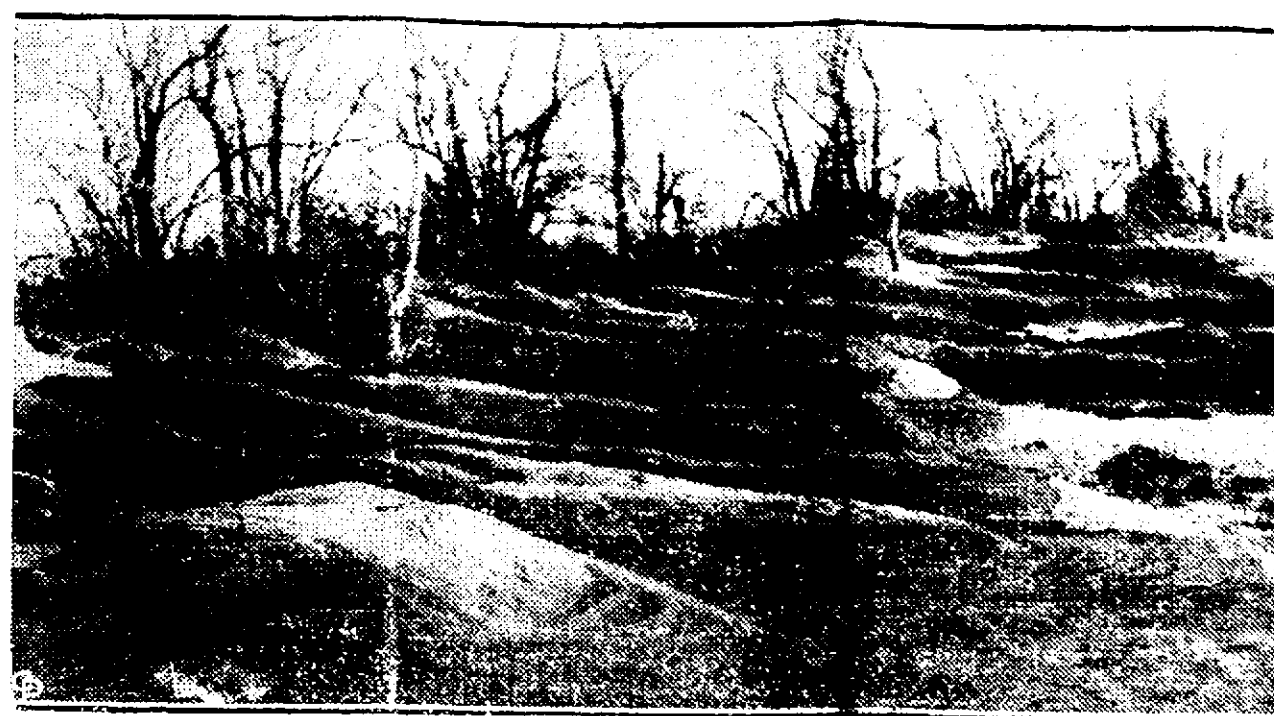

The principal prosecution witnesses, James Senese, 19, took the witness stand and testified that he had shot the tavern owner to death for a promised fee of $500 that he said Mrs. Erickson declared she would pay out of the insurance money she was to collect.

JORDAN ASKS RIVER FUNDS

To Push Application for Scioto Conservancy; Money to Be Earmarked

COLUMBUS, Mar. 27—Officials of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district today planned to make another trip to Washington to push their application for part of the proposed $4,800,000 work relief funds following the first move to earmark part of the fund for the Ohio conservancy project.

Alan N. Jordan, assistant secretary of the district organization, pointed out today the request of Chairman Wilson of the U. S. House flood control committee for $600,000,000 of the proposed work relief funds earmarked for flood control work covers only a portion of the program outlined by the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district for 17 central Ohio counties.

A total of $12,826,000 earmarked for seven proposed dams in the Ohio conservancy program was asked by Wilson, but approximately $14,371,000 more is needed to carry out the program proposed by the conservancy district officials, Jordan explained.

The seven dams included in the list for which Wilson would earmark funds were proposed in original plans for the conservancy area, drafted by army engineers. All the proposed dams are on the Scioto river.

Three more dams are needed, according to Jordan, on the Sandusky river and five more projects are also included in the plans completed by engineers for the Scioto-Sandusky group.

A northeast wind ranging in velocity from 30 to 36 miles an hour whipped the dust into billowy, choking clouds.

Airplane and highway traffic was halted during the night, but was resumed as the "blow" abated at daylight. A plane due in Kansas City from Los Angeles at 8 a. m. was grounded at Albuquerque.

The string of the dust haze reached Kansas City this morning but was quickly driven south by a strong north wind.

"Disarmed Germany" Thing of Past, Simon to Inform MacDonald

HITLER ADAMANT

New Agreement May be Aired April 11

LONDON, March 27 — To an England tensely anxious for a first-hand report on his conversations with Chancellor Adolf Hitler, British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon returned today, to inform the government that Germany will have nothing less than an army as powerful as the greatest in Europe.

Twenty-four hours of deep consideration of the communique issued in Berlin yesterday following the conference and of the statement made by Sir John to the press left Britain with the unalterable

"War" States Solon; "No" Cries Educator

WORCESTER, Mass., March 28—War or peace? The statesman sees war in the offing; the educator sees peace.

Senator Gerald P. Nye (R) of North Dakota, chairman of the senate munitions committee: "We find the world nearer to war today than it was thirty days before the World War."

President Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard: "My guess, and a very worthless one at that, is that war between the great nations of Europe will not occur in the near future."

Opinion than the Reich's new army is here to stay.

Sir John returned to London as he left—by plane. But while he journeyed to Berlin with the obvious hope of persuading Hitler to modify or at least withhold actual application of his conscription decree, he came away at least in this respect a disappointed man.

Others Must Quit

Sir John's guarded statement in Berlin, which undoubtedly will be amplified when he meets Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald at 10 Downing Street later in the afternoon, made it clear to British minds that a disarmed Germany is a thing of the past unless the nations of Europe ground their weapons of war also.

In reporting to parliament on the weekend conversations in Berlin, Sir John will doubtless insist the talks were supposed to be nothing more than "exploratory", but there is little doubt he also will feel obliged to admit he found Chancellor Hitler adamant in his determination to defend Germany adequately as long as all of Europe remains an armed camp.

To Meet France, Italy

When Sir John left Berlin, it was generally believed he had decided to work out some new arrangement for international arms agreement to present to France and Italy at Stresa when he meets with statesmen of those countries on April 11. British press and public opinion expects him at least to hint at the formula before many days have passed.

Committee to Act as Own Attorneys

COLUMBUS, Mar. 27—Disclosures of "waste and inefficiency" of astounding proportions were promised today by administration leaders as a joint legislative committee opened its initial hearing in an investigation that will take in all phases of the muddled Ohio relief situation.

Chairman Robert F. Kaser, Shelby-co Democrat, reiterated assurance that there will be "no whitewash" by the committee. He promised that the scope of the inquiry will be broad enough to include attention to charges by Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins that politics was mixed with relief in Ohio.

Four names that have figured prominently for months in the administration of relief to 1,200,000 indigent Ohioans were on the list of invited witnesses for the opening hearing. They were:

Gen. Frank D. Henderson, ousted as state relief director when Martin L. Davey became governor.

William A. Walls, appointed relief director by Davey, succeeding Henderson.

Charles C. Stillman, federal relief director for Ohio appointed by Hopkins when the federal government took complete control of relief activities in this state, March 1, 1935.

The committee desired to question Miss Mary Irene Atkinson, personal officer of the federal relief unit, but her appearance was postponed until later because she was out of the city.

Miss Atkinson is the former chief of the state charities division, who was dismissed by Governor Davey a short time before the federal government employed her. In her new position she exercised much authority over appointees of the governor's relief director. Her (Continued on Page 2)

Shut Down to Prevent More Violence As Strike Continues; Many Injured

CINCINNATI, March 27—The big plant of the Crosby Radio corporation here, which normally employs 4,000 workers, was ordered shut down today because of violence growing out of the three-day old strike of between 2,400 and 3,000 workers there.

Lewis M. Crosby, general manager of the company, in ordering the shut down, declared:

"This action is taken in the interest of loyal employees whom we cannot subject to violence and threats of violence. No doubt a great majority of our employees want to work as this was demonstrated yesterday when 800 more returned to their jobs."

CINCINNATI, March 27—Milling crowds again today began to besiege the plant of the Crosby Radio corporation here as the strike of workers there entered its third day.

A crowd of approximately 2,000 strikers and their sympathizers gathered to hiss and boo at workers who entered the factory. Their numbers were being swollen hourly as curious were attracted to the scene.

Conservative estimates mean while placed the number of those bruised in the fighting yesterday at between 75 and 100. However, none was reported seriously hurt.

R. A. Huff, strike leader, asserted the disturbances were caused by sympathizers and not strikers, pointing out that the latter had established a patrol of "union police."

"Disarmed Germany" Thing of Past, Simon to Inform MacDonald

HITLER ADAMANT

New Agreement May be Aired April 11

LONDON, March 27 — To an England tensely anxious for a first-hand report on his conversations with Chancellor Adolf Hitler, British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon returned today, to inform the government that Germany will have nothing less than an army as powerful as the greatest in Europe. Twenty-four hours of deep consideration of the communique issued in Berlin yesterday following the conference and of the statement made by Sir John to the press left Britain with the unalterable

"War" States Solon;

"No" Cries Educator

WORCESTER, Mass., March 28 — War or peace? The statesman sees war in the offing; the educator sees peace.

Senator Gerald P. Nye (R) of North Dakota, chairman of the senate munitions committee: "We find the world nearer to war today than it was thirty days before the World War."

President Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard: "My guess, and a very worthless one at that, is that war between the great nations of Europe will not occur in the near future."

Opinion than the Reich's new army is here to stay.

Sir John returned to London as he left—by plane. But while he journeyed to Berlin with the obvious hope of persuading Hitler to modify or at least withhold actual application of his conscription decree, he came away at least in this respect a disappointed man.

Others Must Quit

Sir John's guarded statement in Berlin, which undoubtedly will be amplified when he meets Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald at 10 Downing Street later in the afternoon, made it clear to British minds that a disarmed Germany is a thing of the past unless the nations of Europe ground their weapons of war also.

In reporting to parliament on the weekend conversations in Berlin, Sir John will doubtless insist the talks were supposed to be nothing more than "exploratory", but there is little doubt he also will feel obliged to admit he found Chancellor Hitler adamant in his determination to defend Germany adequately as long as all of Europe remains an armed camp.

To Meet France, Italy

When Sir John left Berlin, it was generally believed he had decided to work out some new arrangement for international arms agreement to present to France and Italy at Stresa when he meets with statesmen of those countries on April 11. British press and public opinion expects him at least to hint at the formula before many days have passed.

STATE INQUIRY TO COVER ALL RELIEF FACTS

Kaser, Chairman, Says Charges of Politics in Relief to be Aired

HEAR HENDERSON

Committee to Act as Own Attorneys

COLUMBUS, Mar. 27 — Disclosures of "waste and inefficiency" of astounding proportions were promised today by administration leaders as a joint legislative committee opened its initial hearing in an investigation that will take in all phases of the muddled Ohio relief situation.

Chairman Robert F. Kaser, Shelby-co Democrat, reiterated assurance today that there will be "no whitewash" by the committee. He promised that the scope of the inquiry will be broad enough to include attention to charges by Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins that politics was mixed with relief in Ohio.

Four names that have figured prominently for months in the administration of relief to 1,200,000 indigent Ohioans were on the list of invited witnesses for the opening hearing. They were:

Gen. Henderson Called

Gen. Frank D. Henderson, ousted as state relief director when Martin L. Davey became governor. William A. Walls, appointed relief director by Davey, succeeding Henderson.

Charles C. Stillman, federal relief director for Ohio appointed by Hopkins when the federal government took complete control of relief activities in this state 10 days ago.

Dayton Frost, relief organization investigator who was invited to appear before the committee because of his wide knowledge of the relief set-up in various counties which he visited as field representative.

The committee desired to question Miss Mary Irene Atkinson, personal officer of the federal relief unit, but her appearance was postponed until later because she was out of the city.

Miss Atkinson is the former chief of the state charities division who was dismissed by Governor Davey a short time before the federal government employed her. In her new position she exercised much authority over appointees of the governor's relief director. Her

CROSBY RADIO PLANT CLOSED

Shut Down to Prevent More Violence As Strike Continues; Many Injured

CINCINNATI, March 27 — The big plant of the Crosby Radio corporation here, which normally employs 4,000 workers, was ordered shut down today because of violence growing out of the three-day old strike of between 2,400 and 3,000 workers there.

Lewis M. Crosby, general manager of the company, in ordering the shut down, declared:

"This action is taken in the interest of loyal employees whom we cannot subject to violence and threats of violence. No doubt a great majority of our employees want to work as this was demonstrated yesterday when 800 more returned to their jobs."

CINCINNATI, March 27 — Milling crowds again today began to besiege the plant of the Crosby Radio corporation here as the strike of workers there entered its third day.

A crowd of approximately 2,000 strikers and their sympathizers gathered to hiss and boo at workers who entered the factory. Their numbers were being swollen hourly as curious were attracted to the scene.

Conservative estimates meanwhile placed the number of those bruised in the fighting yesterday at between 75 and 100. However, none was reported seriously hurt.

R. A. Huff, strike leader, asserted the disturbances were caused by sympathizers and not by strikers, pointing out that the latter had established a patrol of 30 "union police."

SUPREME COURT WILL TEST LIQUOR CHIEF'S ELIGIBILITY

BRICKER ASKS COURT RULING

Claims Office Unlawfully Held; Senate Votes 30 to 1 Approving Burk

COLUMBUS, Mar. 27.—It was up to the state supreme court today to determine whether Clarence H. Burk, New London, is or is not eligible to serve as director of the Ohio liquor monopoly.

As soon as the state senate confirmed Burk's appointment by Governor Davey, 30 to 1, Attorney General Bricker filed quo warranto proceedings in the supreme court to oust Burk and exclude him from performing duties of the office he has held since Mar. 2.

Bricker charged that Burk's membership in the 90th General Assembly, which created the position to which Davey appointed him, makes him ineligible under the constitution even though he resigned months before the liquor control act was introduced.

"Fine, that saves us the bother of instituting a friendly suit," Governor Davey commented. "It is perfectly all right."

May Be Arguments Asked whether he would permit the attorney general's office to appear before the court in behalf of Burk as well as against him, the governor refused a direct answer but said he thought "there ought to be arguments on both sides."

Bricker felt it his "statutory duty" to challenge Burk's right to hold office. Under the law, he cited, the attorney general is required to institute an action in quo warranto when he believes a public office is unlawfully held.

"Burk was elected a member of the 90th General Assembly for the two-year term of 1933 and 1934, which assembly created the office of director of the department of liquor control," said Bricker. "The constitution of Ohio prohibits a member of the assembly from being appointed to an office created during the term for which he was elected or for one year thereafter."

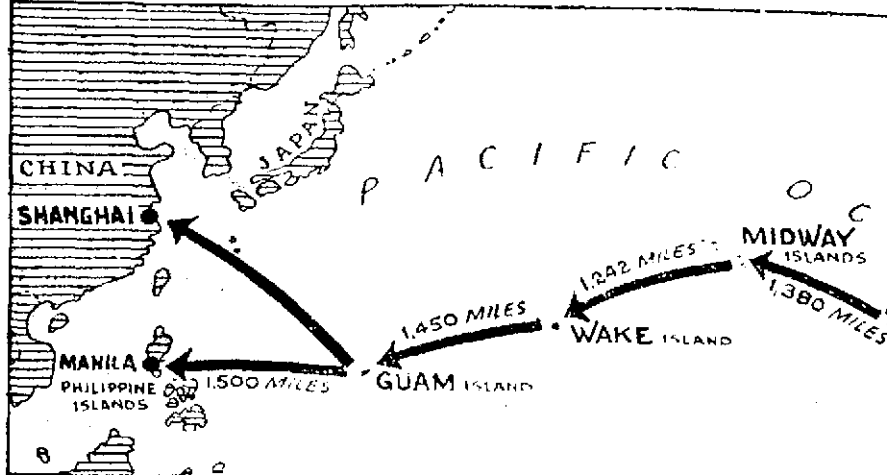

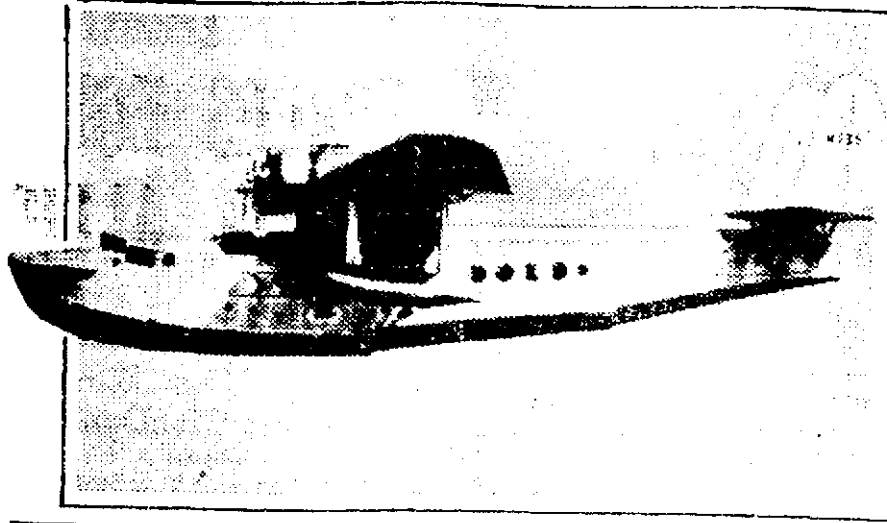

The attorney general said he expected the supreme court to hear the case within the next two or three weeks and dispose of it promptly.

Governor Davey's advisers, upholding Burk's right to be liquor director, argue that he obviously had nothing to do with creating the position since he retired from the assembly long before the liquor act came before it. Therefore, they contend, while his appointment might not be strictly in accord with the letter of the constitution it is not contrary to its spirit.

Judge Is Heard But on this subject, Judge Will P. Stephenson, still a member of the supreme court, had this to say in holding the county recorder term-extender bill passed by the 90th general assembly, unconstitutional:

"It is dangerous for any court to hold that an act of the General Assembly contravenes the spirit, but not the letter, of the constitution. The spirit of the constitution is like any other spirit. We cannot see it nor handle it, consequently employment by the federal government was regarded by many as precipitating the bitter verbal warfare between Davey and Hopkins.

No Lawyers Hired

Although there are four attorneys on the investigating committee, no private legal counsel has been employed. The governor had expressed a desire that the committee retain Attorney Dennis Duvalley, Ashtabula, who filed his libel suit against Hopkins in New York municipal court recently, but when the Republicans and two Democratic committee members insisted that if Duvalley were employed a Republican attorney also be retained to insure non-partisanship, the committee agreed to let its own lawyer members act as counsel.

Investigators will be hired by the committee to prepare evidence later, Chairman Kaser said.

SUPREME COURT WILL TEST LIQUOR CHIEF'S ELIGIBILITY

BRICKER ASKS COURT RULING

Claims Office Unlawfully Held; Senate Votes 30 to 1 Approving Burk

COLUMBUS, Mar. 27.—It was up to the state supreme court today to determine whether Clarence H. Burk, New London, is or is not eligible to serve as director of the Ohio liquor monopoly.

As soon as the state senate confirmed Burk's appointment by Governor Davey, 30 to 1, Attorney General Bricker filed quo warranto proceedings in the supreme court to oust Burk and exclude him from performing duties of the office he has held since Mar. 2.

Bricker charged that Burk's membership in the 90th General Assembly, which created the position to which Davey appointed him, makes him ineligible under the constitution, even though he resigned months before the liquor control act was introduced.

"Fine, that saves us the bother of instituting a friendly suit," Governor Davey commented. "It is perfectly all right."

May Be Arguments

Asked whether he would permit the attorney general's office to appear before the court in behalf of Burk as well as against him, the governor refused a direct answer but said he thought "there ought to be arguments on both sides."

Bricker felt it his "statutory duty" to challenge Burk's right to hold office. Under the law, he cited, the attorney general is required to institute an action in quo warranto when he believes a public office is unlawfully held.

"Burk was elected a member of the 90th General Assembly for the two-year term of 1933 and 1934, which assembly created the office of director of the department of liquor control," said Bricker. "The constitution of Ohio prohibits a member of the assembly from being appointed to an office created during the term for which he was elected or for one year thereafter."

The attorney general said he expected the supreme court to hear the case within the next two or three weeks and dispose of it promptly.

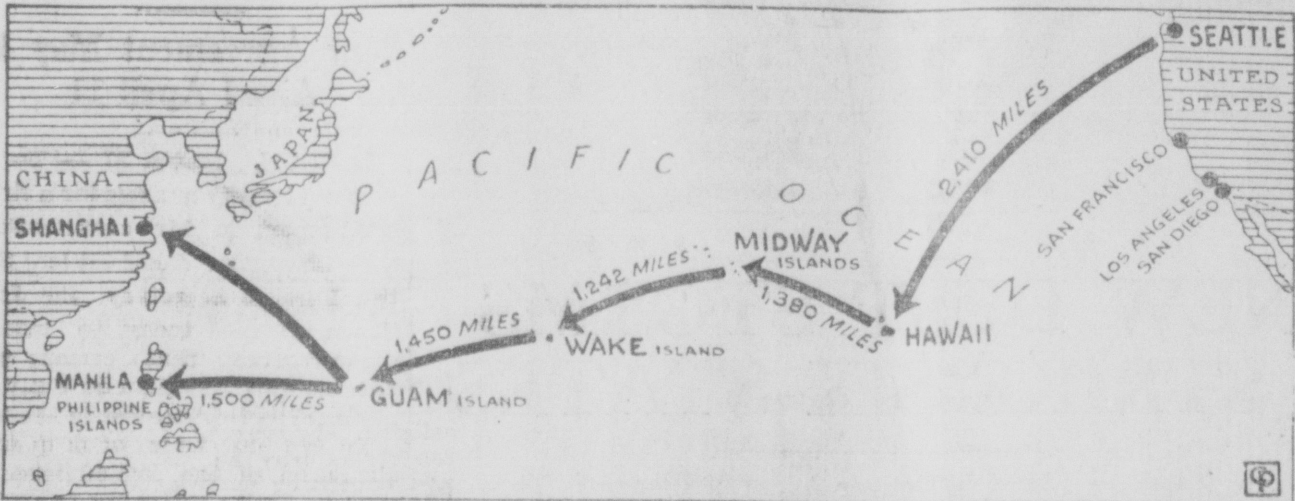

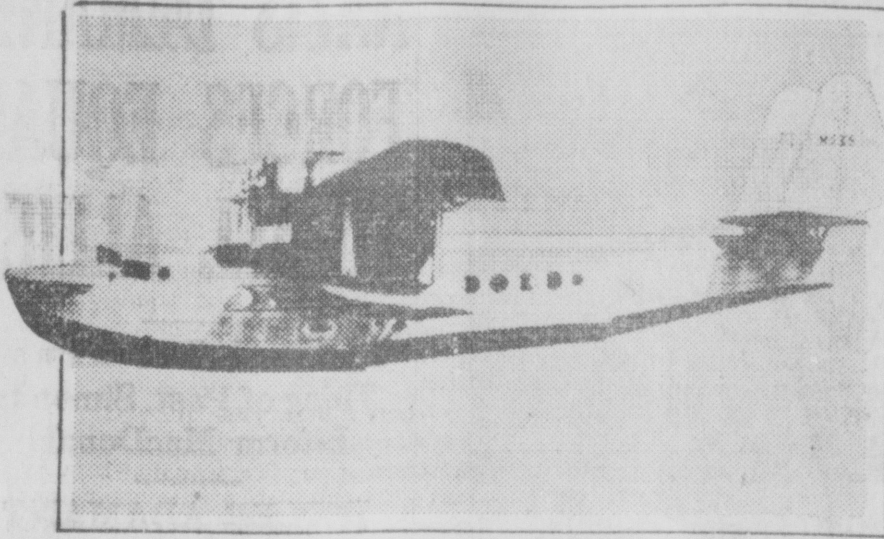

Governor Davey's advisers, upholding Burk's right to be liquor director, argue that he obviously had nothing to do with creating the position since he retired from the assembly long before the liquor act came before it. Therefore, they contend, while his appointment might not be strictly in accord with the letter of the constitution it is not contrary to its spirit.

Judge Is Heard

But on this subject, Judge Will P. Stephenson, still a member of the supreme court, had this to say in holding the county recorder term-extender bill passed by the 90th general assembly, unconstitutional:

"It is dangerous for any court to hold that an act of the General Assembly contravenes the spirit, but not the letter, of the constitution. The spirit of the constitution is like any other spirit. We cannot see it nor handle it, consequently we do not know much about it. We are too prone to insist that the spirit of the constitution is what we think it ought to be. Unless such spirit is clearly manifest, it had best be left to the spiritual world."

STATE INQUIRY

employment by the federal government was regarded by many as precipitating the bitter verbal warfare between Davey and Hopkins.

No Lawyers Hired

Although there are four attorneys on the investigating committee, no private legal counsel has been employed. The governor had expressed a desire that the committee retain Attorney Dennis Dunlavy, Ashtabula, who filed his libel suit against Hopkins in Newark municipal court recently, but when the Republicans and two Democratic committee members insisted that if Dunlavy were employed a Republican attorney also be retained to insure non-partisanship, the committee agreed to let its own lawyer members act as counsel.

Investigators will be hired by the committee to prepare evidence later, Chairman Kaser said.

"Sure, enjoy yourself," said Jim. "It's a ding good cigarette."

I was working way late at the office one night and ran out of cigarettes. When Jim the watchman came through I tackled him for a smoke.

"Sure," says Jim, and he handed over a pack of Chesterfields. "Go ahead, Mr. Kent, take three or four."

Jim said he'd smoked a lot of cigarettes in his time, but he'd put Chesterfield up in front of any of 'em when it came to taste.

... "and they ain't a bit strong either," is the way Jim put it.

That was the first Chesterfield I ever smoked. And I'm right there with him, too, when he says it's a ding good cigarette.

These Models Both Versatile and Serviceable

The three models shown above proclaim the strong tweed influence on this spring's fashions. The model pictured at left is a sports tweed coat of multi-colored tones, made with a yoke and gathered fullness in the back. Have You a Display Case That You Are Not Using?

During the last ten or a dozen years, the Circleville Public Library has had a number of interesting displays which have enabled many to see treasures and objects of interest from local homes and collections.

Libraries, in towns which have no museums have been making special efforts to add some form of supplementary service to compensate, in a small way, for this lack.

Where a library is equipped with regular museum cases, many valuable temporary loans and permanent gifts can be secured. These cases are expensive, though doubtless well worth their cost in convenience and security. Until such equipment can be added, our library is doing the best it can with available materials.

Appetizing Lenten Dishes

The abstinence from certain foods is an ancient custom dating back long before Lent became a religious observance. Today Lenten dishes may be just as tasty and appetizing as foods served in any other season.

Salads should hold a prominent place in the menu planning during this season and fish salads will probably be a luncheon favorite. Hot dishes to serve would include such foods as rice, macaroni, cheese, scalloped vegetables, seafoods, vegetable croquettes, tasty relishes, sauces, omelets, and creamed vegetables.

A salad that would be a complement to baked fish is a molded garnish of rice.

Molded Garnish of Rice

2 C. cold cooked rice
1 Tbsp. gelatin
1/2 C. cold water
2 C. boiling water
1 Tbsp. vinegar
1 Tbsp. green pepper
1/2 C. ripe olives
1/2 C. cucumber pickles
1/2 C. celery
1/2 C. cottage cheese
1 tsp. salt
1/2 C. cucumber

Soak the gelatin in cold water. Dissolve it in the boiling water. Cool. Be sure pickles, olives and cucumbers are finely chopped. When the gelatin begins to set, fold in the other ingredients. Pour into a mold. Chill until set. Serve on lettuce with a tart salad dressing.

Mushrooms, Cheese and Broccoli in Noodle Ring

Cook 1/4 pound of broad noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Rinse in cold water and drain. Beat 5 eggs slightly. Add 1 teaspoon salt and 1 quart of hot milk with 1 tablespoon butter melted into it.

Pour a small amount of the custard mixture into a greased mold. Add more custard and noodles to fill the mold. Set in a pan of hot water, about 40 minutes at 350 degrees. Turn out on a platter; fill the center with cream sauce, grated cheese, tender cooked buttered broccoli, and mushrooms. Brussels sprouts are good with this noodle ring, also.

Individual Salmon Puffs

Flake salmon, combine with a seasoned, medium white sauce and bake in individual custard cups. Beaten egg white may be added to increase the "puffing."

Vegetable Omelet

1/2 lb. fresh mushrooms
6 Tbsp. butter
2 C. mashed potatoes
2 C. green beans, cooked and chopped

Chop mushrooms and saute in the butter. Beat into the 2 cups of mashed potatoes. Add the beans. Return to the greased pan and cook until brown on the bottom. Fold over with a spatula and serve on a platter. Garnish with sliced pickled cucumbers. Serves 6.

Among the new fashions for spring, tweeds are receiving much consideration due to their versatility and serviceability. The three models shown above proclaim the strong tweed influence on this spring's fashions. The model pictured at left is a sports tweed coat of multi-colored tones, made with a yoke and gathered fullness in the back. The swagger tweed coat for sport wear, pictured right, is a delightful and smart change from the severe tailleur of the season. Just a little more practical is the simple loose fitting tweed coat, center, which has a matching skirt and blouse. The coat, skirt and lower part of the blouse are of brown tweed.

Have You a Display Case That You Are Not Using?

During the last ten or a dozen years, the Circleville Public Library has had a number of interesting displays which have enabled many to see treasures and objects of interest from local homes and collections.

Libraries, in towns which have no museums, have been making special efforts to add some form of supplementary service to compensate, in a small way, for this lack.

Where a library is equipped with regular museum loans, many valuable temporary loans and permanent gifts can be secured. These cases are expensive, though doubtless well worth their cost in convenience and security. Until such equipment can be added, our library is doing the best it can with available materials.

Appetizing Lenten Dishes

The abstinence from certain foods is an ancient custom dating back long before Lent became a religious observance. Today Lenten dishes may be just as tasty and appetizing as foods served in any other season.

Salads should hold a prominent place in the menu planning during this season and fish salads will probably be a luncheon favorite. Hot dishes to serve would include such foods as rice, macaroni, cheese, scalloped vegetables, seafoods, vegetable croquettes, tasty relishes, sauces, omelets, and creamed vegetables.

A salad that would be a complement to baked fish is a molded garnish of rice.

Molded Garnish of Rice

- 2 C. cold cooked rice
- 1 Tbsp. gelatin
- 1/2 C. cold water
- 2 C. boiling water
- 1 Tbsp. vinegar
- 1 Tbsp. green pepper
- 1/2 C. ripe olives
- 1/2 C. cucumber pickles
- 1/2 C. celery
- 1/2 C. cottage cheese
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 C. cucumber

Soak the gelatin in cold water. Dissolve it in the boiling water. Cool. Be sure pickles, olives and cucumbers are finely chopped. When the gelatin begins to set, fold in the other ingredients. Pour into a mold. Chill until set. Serve on lettuce with a tart salad dressing.

Mushrooms, Cheese and Broccoli in Noodle Ring

Cook 1/4 pound of broad noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Rinse in cold water and drain. Beat 5 eggs slightly. Add 1 teaspoon salt and 1 quart of hot milk with 1 tablespoon butter melted into it.

Pour a small amount of the custard mixture into a greased mold. Add more custard and noodles to fill the mold. Set in a pan of hot water and bake until firm in the center, about 40 minutes at 350 degrees. Turn out on a platter, fill the center with cream sauce, grated cheese, tender cooked buttered broccoli, and mushrooms. Brussel sprouts are good with this noodle ring, also.

Individual Salmon Puffs

Flake salmon, combine with a seasoned, medium white sauce and bake in individual custard cups. Beaten egg white may be added to increase the "puffing."

Vegetable Omelet

- 1/2 lb. fresh mushrooms
- 6 Tbsp. butter
- 2 C. mashed potatoes
- 2 C. green beans, cooked and chopped

Chop mushrooms and saute in the butter. Beat into the 2 cups of mashed potatoes. Add the beans. Return to the greased pan and cook until brown on the bottom. Fold over with a spatula and serve on a platter. Garnish with sliced pickled cucumbers. Serves 6.

Eagle Likes Fresh Meat

The eagle likes his meat fresh, and has a beak with which he can get it. It is large, sharp, and strongly hooked, a cruel beak, well calculated to enable its owner to tear tough living flesh.

You'll Enjoy Doing This Hanging

Here is your chance to thoroughly enjoy your needlework in the making as well as in a finished decoration. A variety of flowers have been skillfully translated into embroidery to make a hanging that will be an interesting color spot in any room. Wool, or a rope silk are excellent for this work. The daisies—dahlias—ageratum—gladiolus are all formed of simple stitches. A variety of color schemes are suggested so that you can fit your colors to your room.

The hanging need not be framed, only a lining being necessary. This vase could also be used effectively as a motif on a bedspread.

In pattern 5333 you will find a transfer pattern of a picture 15x20 inches; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches needed; color suggestions; directions for making a hanging.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main St., Circleville, O.

PATTERN 9335

If you're having to watch your potatoes and desserts these days, here's a quick way to a slender appearance! It won't make you lose weight, but it will make you look as if you had. The cape, of course, conceals any bulges of the upper arm, and makes the hips and waist appear slim. That diagonal closing—always a flattering line—is new when combined with a cape, and smooths the bodice to reduce the effect of the bustline. Make this lovely dress in a fairly small patterned print—silk crepe, cotton or triple sheer—the shops are showing them in exquisite colors. And for a fatal bit of charm, add lace at the neck.

Pattern 9335 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3 7-8 yards 39 inch fabric and 7-8 yard 2 1-2 inch lace.

Weak stomachs need the digestible frying fat!

I hated to hurt her feelings. But I simply must not eat fried foods unless they're fried in CRISCO. I wish everybody knew that CRISCO is the digestible vegetable fat.

Vera, I wanted to warn you that Mrs. Brack doesn't fry with CRISCO. I was afraid those fritters would cause gas—

Vera's CAULIFLOWERETS which she always fries in digestible CRISCO

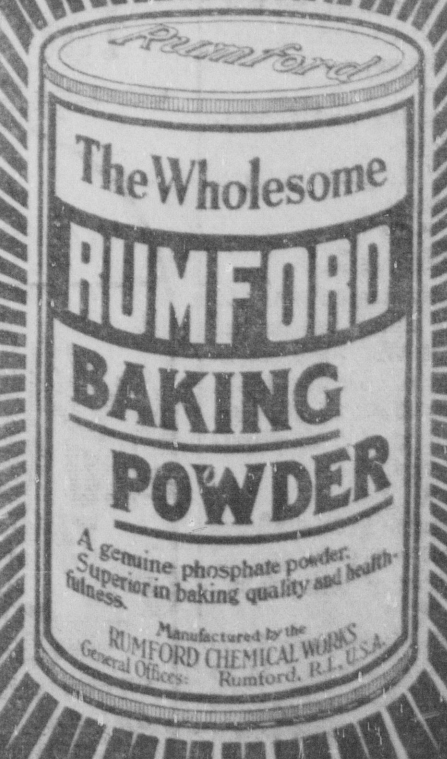

- 1 large cauliflower
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon melted Crisco

Wash cauliflower and separate into flowerets. Boil until tender in boiling salted water, then drain. (A slice of lemon boiled with cauliflower keeps it beautifully white.) Dip flowerets into batter prepared this way: Beat eggs with milk. Stir liquid into flour and salt. Add melted Crisco and cheese. Beat until smooth. Fry flowerets in deep hot CRISCO (the digestible vegetable fat) when an inch cube of bread browns in 40 seconds (375-385° F.). Fry until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot. (Don't throw away your frying Crisco. Strain it and save for future fryings. Crisco is the fat that stays digestible for months!)

AN AMERICAN PORTRAIT

A QUIET EVENING at home is the normal routine of the average American. In other words, as Mr. Micawber so commonly remarked, he lives a staid and respectable life, free from great excitement, reasonably full of social contacts with his friends and neighbors, and, on the whole, improving to his mind and manners. This is gleaned from the files of the National Recreation Association, which endeavor to find out what Americans do in their spare time.

The first thing in order of preference is reading the newspaper, or perhaps a magazine. Comfortably seated in his easy chair, your American turns on the radio, except once a fortnight or so when he goes to the movies. Otherwise he fills out the evening hours reading fiction. If these are not a good book at hand and the weather is favorable he may go for a pleasure drive or he may stay home and write letters, read non-fiction or converse. Conversing is not his long suit; it comes tenth on the list of preferred occupations. There are other things he may do which are not listed, such as pottering around the house, doing little odd jobs of repairs, but he finds something with which to busy himself, for loafing comes twenty-seventh, nearly a third of the way down toward poetry writing, which is number seventy-two.

In an average year this average American buys a box of candy less often than once a month. Soft drinks may tempt him a couple times a week, and maybe once a month he buys a package of chewing gum. He is not an excessive smoker, a pack of cigarettes a day, or its equivalent in cigars or pipe or chewing tobacco suffices. He pays $2.20 a year for musical instruments, which suggests a vivid interest in mouth organs and Jews-harps, as the only music he can afford.

It is a homey picture, not far different from what any of us might have drawn without access to the National Recreation Association's files, but that would have been guesswork and this is an official portrait.

HOPE FOR REAL ESTATE

ON THE QUESTION of real estate values, Arthur Brisbane, whose literary and journalistic activities are so diversified, is an incurable optimist. While he lives, breathes and pounds a typewriter, the earth's broad acres will have an enthusiastic and unfailing champion.

"In good times and bad, in doubtful times and boom times, there is just one real wealth, and that is well selected real estate," Mr. Brisbane says. "Real estate has its troubles. Dishonest politicians overtax it. It sukers when business depressed, and tenants temporarily impoverished, cannot pay their rent. But for those who know how to select it, and are able to hold it, good real estate is the best investment. There are only four corners of Broad and Wall Street four corners of 57th Street and Park Avenue, and there never will be any more."

The average owner of property will consider Mr. Brisbane's views as somewhat more roseate than circumstances justify. In few instances today is the possession of real estate a source of comfort or of financial aid to the owner. On the contrary, it is the expressive language of the day, a headache.

But Mr. Brisbane's beliefs nevertheless enjoy the support of a rich background of tradition. Some of the greatest fortunes in the United States have had judicious real estate investment as their basis and there is a wealth of economic history to sustain the hope that it will eventually come into its own.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE
McDONALD FEADER

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance, is loved by the Dumny, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Anka, but is fond of her father, Gintza. Anka tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him until she suspects her gypsy sweetheart has tricked her about the ring's value. In town she sees three men playing cards near a private car on a railroad siding. She dances for them. Marcu, impressed, one of the men, Steve, a blackmailer, New York theatrical producer, promises to return in 10 days and give Consuelo a pair of slippers. Marcu bargains with Gintza for his daughter's hand. Reluctantly Consuelo agrees to marry Marcu and the gypsies leave town. On her wedding day, blackmail and his friends return with the slippers for Consuelo. She asks him to take her to New York. Blackmail refuses and the train pulls out for New York. At the next stop Doug, Blackmail's secretary, finds Consuelo has been riding in the day coach.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 19

DOUG WAITED until the backgammon game was over, then casually said, "Say Stewart, I've been thinking and I've come to the conclusion from observation in the past that you are quite a heart-breaker. In view of that fact, may I ask why you didn't bring the gypsy along with you when you are usually such an easy floss for good looking women who plead with tears in their voices?"

"Of course you haven't a serious thought in your head—never did have and never will—"

"Now that's positively unkind. I've been concerned with serious thoughts all afternoon. You could at least have given the gypsy your address or paid her fare or done something—"

"You know as well as I do why I didn't bring her along. I'll admit she's about the prettiest thing I ever saw—but after all I didn't have time to give her gypsy father three horses and two colts and my gold watch and—"

"A small check of several thousand dollars would have expedited matters considerably. Money, in my opinion, is faster than a horse or a watch and I would say that—"

"And have a dagger through me for my pains." Stewart interrupted what threatened to be a long speech on the subject.

"I feel interested in suddenly the girl turned up in New York?"

Stewart lighted a cigarette before he answered.

"That would be different." He seemed to play with the idea. Then he shook his head. "Like all the rest of the women she'd want me to put her on Broadway. Leave it to Telling fortunes. Laughing. People about her, interested. Rumble of the train, wheels intoning, to the east, to the east, New York. Lights on Broadway. The high ball at last. What did these gypsies who had come to their fortunes and pressed money into her hands know about this song in her heart and what could they know about this other thing in her heart that was weeping bitter tears and asking over and over, revenge is sweet? Revenge is sweet, is it, gypsy?

"White man, you will find your heart's desire in New York. Go on—"

Revenge is sweet, is it? Is it? Tonight her wedding night. It was already dark. The fires would be lighted. The music started. Gypsies singing, laughing, drinking, eating. Petru and his flute. Marcu, tall, straight, eyes shining, heart beating fast, going to the way to part the curtains and call his bride, or had one of the women gone in and found her not there?

"Cross my palm with silver, white lady. I can tell you all you want to know, your past, your future—"

"Can you yet tell if revenge is sweet?"

"Fear came over her. What was this thing she had done? Marcu standing at the van—light gone from his eyes—where is she, where is my loved one? Gone! Wheels rumbling. New York where the marble palace beamed. Gypsy, I cannot take the way to me, you must take the way to me. I tell you it ain't worth nothing—it ain't worth a hunk of glass!"

"Watch, white man, that you do not go on the water, for the ship will sink and you will surely die. Where is she? Where is she? Tell me, you stinks, what have you done with her? This is my wedding night. If in just you have hidden my bride, I will kill the one who has dared this thing!"

"Cross my palm with silver and—" known life repeaters. Nearly 400 had been convicted of criminal homicide; 1788 were robbers; 2798 were burglars. Few right-minded people would argue that a person who has committed homicide should have the benefits of the parole system.

As the parole system is being administered, society is endangered. Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Division of Investigation of the Justice Department has this to say about the faults of the parole system: "To my mind, there can be only one reason why thousands upon thousands of men who have repeatedly committed crimes are set free to commit other and more dangerous offenses against the law. This is the failure of public officials faithfully to carry out their public trust, placing paramount the welfare and interests of society."

"Behold My Wife," which was directed by Mitchell Leisen from a screen story by Grover Jones and Vincent Lawrence, draws its story from the hypothesis that a wealthy boy, frustrated in his intention to marry a girl, would attempt to revenge himself on his meddling family.

His list of productions includes "Quick Millions," "Goldie," "Six Cylinder Love," "She Wanted a Millionaire," "Disorderly Conduct," "Young America," "Society Girl," "The Painted Woman," "20,000 Years in Sing Sing," "Me and My Gal," "Sky Devils," "Face in the Sky," "The Power and the Glory," "Shanghai Madness," "The Mad Game," "Looking for Trouble," "Bottoms Up," "The Show-Off," "Now I'll Tell You," "Mrs. Arnold Rothstein," and his latest picture, "Marie Galante," now at the Grand Theatre, in which he shares top honors with Ketti Gallian.

Heard & Seen CONTRACT BRIDGE

BY KAY JAY

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

Many residents of Circleville and Pickaway Co. are reminiscing this week on the details of the most disastrous flood ever known in the Scioto Valley—the flood of 1913, which did so much damage throughout the southern part of the state.

According to the Union Herald of March 27, 1913, the Scioto river reached the maximum stage of 21 feet and two inches on Tuesday night, March 25, following six inches of rainfall in 72 hours, the highest stage known in history. The lowlands were entirely flooded, the water reaching to some sections of the city. Many residents of N. Court, Pleasant and Pickaway streets were marooned in their homes and were rescued by volunteers who were patrolling that section in boats. Many narrow escapes from drowning were reported. The city was in darkness early on the morning of the 26th, when the high water reached the power plant; all railroads were blocked; bridges washed out; many people driven from their homes to seek shelter among their neighbors who lived on higher ground.

Two men who had taken refuge in a barn were forced to cut a hole in the roof and climb out to safety. Dead bodies from the swollen streams to the north were floating down the river. Gas mains were broken by falling cellar walls.

The Union Herald reported that 30 towns in Ohio, in addition to Dayton, Columbus and Cincinnati, were inundated, the boundary lines of the flooded district in five states being over 2,000 miles long. In Ohio alone there were 460 dead, 4,200 homes gone and 40,500 people temporarily homeless.

The experiences of 22 years ago this week will never be forgotten by local residents, and stories, both tragic and humorous, are still being told as the years roll by.

Although local people in many instances suffered untold hardships, they gladly shared their stores of food and clothing with those less fortunate in other cities and several car loads were sent out to relieve distress elsewhere.

Fishermen were out in full force last Sunday afternoon. I heard a number of stories, but didn't see any fish. One unlucky individual fell in the canal, but couldn't make the story "stick" with the Mrs. when he got home.

REVISED 1935 SCORING

THE INTERNATIONAL BRIDGE LAWS, 1932, have been amended, to go into effect March 31, 1935. Naturally, the most important changes are in scoring. These are given below.

First no trump trick, 40 points. Each subsequent trick scores 30 points. Game remains 100 points. Spade and heart tricks remain 30 points each. Diamond and club tricks remain at 20 points each.

The 1927 values of slams have been restored, as follows: Small Slam, 500 points when not vulnerable, and 750 points when vulnerable; Grand Slam, 1500 points when not vulnerable, and 1800 points when vulnerable.

The premium for winning the rubber remains: 700 points when one side wins the first two games, 500 points when two out of three games have to be won.

Undertrick Penalties
Score Above Line
Not Vulnerable Vulnerable
Tricks Un-Down Un-Down
1 50 100 100 200
2 100 200 200 300

4 200 400 400 500
5 250 500 500 600

The new code has in mind simplicity and reduction of losses to a side not having its fair share of high cards. For going down when not vulnerable, multiply the number of

What Home Medicine Chest
Should Have as Contents

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE AVERAGE home medicine chest may be rather divided into two groups—articles which are regularly used and a second group which may be called the "accumulation of the ages" consisting of such things as capsules in a pasteboard box which Dr. Lydander gave father for a peculiar attack of jaundice that he had about seven years ago.

Dr. Clendening

The first thing to do in preparing a family medicine chest is to clear out all the debris that nobody is using regularly. Most of the liquid preparations have probably been decomposed and become inert by this time so they will not be of any use.

In recommending what should be in a medicine chest, people usually say that the poisons should be put on the top shelves and nothing but poisons should be put there. As a matter of fact, the best thing to do is not to have any poisons in the medicine chest at all. The only one that possibly might be permissible is ipecac, and if you have a bottle of ipecac it should be in a bottle with a rough outside. If not, put three bands of adhesive around the bottle so that you will be able to feel it as well as see it, and know immediately that you have hold of a bottle containing poison.

Adhesive plaster, sterile gauze, gauze bandages, absorbent cotton, vaseline, and tincture of iodine should be kept in a box (a cigar box size) by themselves and labelled "Surgical emergency."

Or drugs, there are only four classes which should be allowed in the medicine cupboard:
1. Cathartics—Which cathartics are: have is not particularly important. In recommending what should be in a medicine chest, people usually say that the poisons should be put on the top shelves and nothing but poisons should be put there. As a matter of fact, the best thing to do is not to have any poisons in the medicine chest at all. The only one that possibly might be permissible is ipecac, and if you have a bottle of ipecac it should be in a bottle with a rough outside. If not, put three bands of adhesive around the bottle so that you will be able to feel it as well as see it, and know immediately that you have hold of a bottle containing poison.

2. Hypnotics or Sleeping Potions—In the form of the barbiturates—veronal, medinal, alonal, amylal, etc.—we have extremely efficient sleep-producing drugs. They are doubtfully habit-forming and, in my experience, not habit-forming at all for 90 per cent of the population. For many people these are almost a necessity—for those who lead a life under pressure. However, other people do not like the idea of having a sleep-producing drug, which might be habit-forming, in the house, and this opinion must be respected.

3. Ointments—Some ointments for external use in case of irritation may be considered a part of the family medicine chest. Zinc oxide ointment and ammoniated mercury ointment are both official and should cover all requirements.

AN AMERICAN PORTRAIT

A QUIET EVENING at home is the normal routine of the average American. In other words, as Mr. Micawber so commonly remarked, he lives a staid and respectable life, free from great excitement, reasonably full of social contacts with his friends and neighbors, and, on the whole, improving to his mind and manners. This is gleaned from the files of the National Recreation Association, which endeavor to find out what Americans do in their spare time.

The first thing in order of preference is reading the newspaper, or perhaps a magazine. Comfortably seated in his easy chair, your American turns on the radio, except once a fortnight or so when he goes to the movies. Otherwise he fills out the evening hours reading fiction. If there is not a good book at hand and the weather is favorable he may go for a pleasure drive or he may stay home and write letters, read non-fiction or converse. Conversing is not his long suit; it comes tenth on the list of preferred occupations. There are other things he may do which are not listed, such as pottering around the house, doing little odd jobs of repairs, but he finds something with which to busy himself, for loafing comes twenty-seventh, nearly a third of the way down toward poetry writing, which is number seventy-two.

In an average year this average American buys a box of candy less often than once a month. Soft drinks may tempt him a couple times a week, and maybe once a month he buys a package of chewing gum. He is not an excessive smoker, a pack of cigarettes a day, or its equivalent in cigars or pipe or chewing tobacco suffices. He pays $2.20 a year for musical instruments, which suggests a vivid interest in mouth organs and jews-harps, as the only music he can afford.

It is a homey picture, not far different from what any of us might have drawn without access to the National Recreation Association's files, but that would have been guesswork and this is an official portrait.

HOPE FOR REAL ESTATE

ON THE QUESTION of real estate values, Arthur Brisbane, whose literary and journalistic activities are so diversified, is an incurable optimist. While he lives, breathes and pounds a typewriter, the earth's broad acres will have an enthusiastic and unflinching champion. "In good times and bad, in doubtful times and boom times, there is just one real wealth, and that is well selected real estate," Mr. Brisbane says. "Real estate has its troubles. Dishonest politicians overtax it. It suffers when business depressed and tenants temporarily impoverished, cannot pay their rent. But for those who know how to select it, and are able to hold it, good real estate is the best investment. There are only four corners of Broad and Wall Street four corners of 57th Street and Park Avenue, and there never will be any more."

The average owner of property will consider Mr. Brisbane's views as somewhat more roseate than circumstances justify. In few instances today is the possession of real estate a source of comfort or of financial aid to the owner. On the contrary, it is the expensive language of the day, a headache.

But Mr. Brisbane's beliefs nevertheless enjoy the support of a rich background of tradition. Some of the greatest fortunes in the United States have had judicious real estate investment as their basis and there is a wealth of economic history to sustain the hope that it will eventually come into its own.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE
McDONALD FEADER

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance, is loved by the Dumb, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Anica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him until she suspects her gypsy sweetheart has tricked her about the ring's value. In town she sees three men playing cards near a private car on a railroad siding. She dances for them. Much impressed, one of the men, Stewart Blackmire, New York theatrical producer, promises to return in 10 days and give Consuelo a pair of slippers. Marcu bargains with Girtza for his daughter's hand. Reluctantly Consuelo agrees to marry Marcu and the gypsies celebrate. On her wedding day, Blackmire and his friends return with the slippers for Consuelo. She asks him to take her to New York. Blackmire refuses and the train pulls out for New York. At the next stop Doug, Blackmire's secretary, finds Consuelo has been riding in the day coach.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 19

DOUG WAITED until the backgammon game was over, then casually said, "Say Stewart, I've been thinking and I've come to the conclusion from observation in the past that you are quite a heart-breaker. In view of that fact, may I ask why you didn't bring the gypsy along with you when you are usually such an easy foil for good looking women who plead with tears in their voices?"

"Of course you haven't a serious thought in your head—never did have and never will—"

"Now that's positively unkind. I've been concerned with serious thoughts all afternoon. You could at least have given the gypsy your address or paid her fare or done something—"

"You know as well as I do why I didn't bring her along. I told what she's about the prettiest thing I ever saw—but after all I didn't have time to give her gypsy father three horses and two colts and my gold watch and—"

A small check of several thousand dollars would have expedited matters considerably. Money, in my opinion, is faster than a horse or a watch and I would say that—"

"And have a dagger through me for my pains." Stewart interrupted what threatened to be a long speech on the subject.

"Still here, Stewart? I suddenly the girl turned up in New York?"

Stewart lit a cigarette before he answered.

"That would be different. It seemed to play with the idea. Then he shook his head. "Like all the rest of the women she'd want me to put her on Broadway. Leave it to you to tell them all about me. Next time you do—"

"—out I go into the cold cruel world, eh?"

"Yes. You know, I often wonder if there's a woman in this world who is satisfied."

"I'll admit you haven't met quite all of them. Now about this gypsy, what if you did put her on Broadway? She can dance like a whizz!"

"I suppose you think she and Louise would get along together?"

"Are you going to marry Louise or something?"

"No. She is a lovely thing—the gypsy, I mean, but then it's best to leave her back in the gypsy camp and let her marry her gypsy man. Take her to New York and you'd spoil her. Why she'd want everything she saw."

"Yes. I imagine she usually gets what she wants, too." Doug said meaningly. "In fact, Don Juan, just a minute ago she said to tell you that gypsies always get what they want!"

Telling fortunes.

People about her, interested. Rumble of the train, wheels tinting, to the east, to the east. New York. Lights on Broadway. The high hill at last. What did these gorgios who listened to their fortunes and pressed money into her hands know about this song in her heart and what could they know about this other thing in her heart that was weeping bitter tears and asking over and over, revenge is sweet? Revenge is sweet, is it, gypsy?

"White man, you will find your heart's desire in New York. Go on—"

Happy fortune.

Revenge is sweet, is it? Is it? Tonight her wedding night. It was already dark. The fires would be lighted. The music started. Gypsies singing, laughing, drinking, eating. Petru and his flute. Marcu, tall, straight, eyes shining, heart beating fast, going to the van to part the curtains and call his bride, or had one of the women gone in and found her not there?

"Cross my palm with silver, white lady. I can tell you all you want to know, your past, your future—"

Can you yet tell if revenge is sweet?

Fear came over her. What was this thing she had done? Marcu standing at the van—light gone from his eyes—where is she, where is my loved one? Gone! Wheels rumbling. New York where the marble palace beckoned. . . . I cannot take you with me, gypsy girl. . . . I tell you it ain't worth rotting—it ain't real—it's a hunk of glass!

"Watch, white man, that you do not go on the water, for the ship will sink and you will surely die. Where is she? Where is she? Tell me, you stinks, what have you done with her? This is my wedding night. In it just you have hidden my bride, I will kill the one who has dared this thing!"

"Cross my palm with silver and I—"

Kiss me before I go. Kiss me, my big dumb one, and forgive me. Silent lips could not say, Marcu she has gone for always. You have lost her. This is her revenge. My dumb one, it is good now you are dumb and cannot say these words. I have called you my friend and now I want your arms about me that I may pour my tears against your heart. I am alone and afraid. I am wicked, bad! Oh Girtza, Girtza, where is your whip that I may feel its forgiving stings against my body! Marcu—"

"I cannot tell more fortunes. I am tired! I am sick—"

The gypsy staggered to her feet and pushed her way through the crowd of people and ran down the aisle of the train. Revenge? She was filled with fear, with sickness. There was only one idea now in her brain. She must get back! She could not take this revenge. She must go to him! She was his, had been his, always would be his! Ah, let him beat her, let him beat her now!

She ran blindly and almost fell into the arms of a man in the shadows at the end of the day coach.

"Gypsy girl!"

Through wet eyes she stared up at him wildly. The gray-haired man. She had been angry with him. He had dared refuse her. Now she forgot that. He was a friend and she clung to him and buried her face against his coat.

Where is this girl, my daughter? Where is this bad one to have done a thing like that to me, her father?

"Why, gypsy girl, what's the matter?" Blackmire was glad of the darkness of the vestibule.

"I must go back! Will this train never stop?" she sobbed.

"It's your first time on a train, isn't it? You poor kid. Come on back with us for a while. Have you had your supper?"

"I—I didn't see any food." Food—who could eat with such a sickness inside of her? There would be a banquet, a wedding banquet with no bride. Empty arms!

She hardly knew that she was walking along beside him but soon she was back in the private car and Doug and Bill were there. They were talking to her—joking.

The gray-haired man telling a story to her—heard him say, what does a gypsy eat? What can a gypsy eat when her heart is breaking? Heart breaking, little fool? Why? Marcu, ah, you hate him! Was he not the one who tricked you? You'll feel fiercer just as soon as you've eaten, gypsy girl!"

Was he not the one who gave you this "hunk of glass" on your finger? Was he not the coward who did not dare to take you in his arms afterward—until too late? Think of the great fellow, the look of anger on his face when he found you gone. Ah, now you've gotten the better of him! Revenge is sweet, isn't it?

"Gee, kid if you've never seen New York you've got a thrill coming and papa Doug is just the man to give you that thrill—with reservations, of course."

"BARKIS IS WILLIN'!"

Heard & Seen

BY KAY JAY

Many residents of Circleville and Pickaway-co are reminiscing this week on the details of the most disastrous flood ever known in the Scioto Valley—the flood of 1913, which did so much damage throughout the southern part of the state.

According to the Union Herald of March 27, 1913, the Scioto river reached the maximum stage of 24 feet and two inches on Tuesday night, March 25, following six inches of rainfall in 72 hours, the highest stage known in history.

The lowlands were entirely flooded, the water reaching to some sections of the city. Many residents of N. Court, Pleasant and Pickaway-sts were marooned in their homes and were rescued by volunteers who were patrolling that section in boats. Many narrow escapes from drowning were reported. The city was in darkness early on the morning of the 26th, when the high water reached the power plant; all railroads were blocked; bridges washed out; many people driven from their homes to seek shelter among their neighbors who lived on higher ground.

Two men who had taken refuge in a barn were forced to cut a hole in the roof and climb out to safety. Dead bodies from the swollen streams to the north were floating down the river. Gas mains were broken by falling cellar walls.

The Union Herald reported that 30 towns in Ohio, in addition to Dayton, Columbus and Cincinnati, were inundated, the boundary lines of the flooded district in five states being over 2,000 miles long. In Ohio alone there were 460 dead, 4,200 homes gone and 40,500 people temporarily homeless.

The experiences of 22 years ago this week will never be forgotten by local residents and stories, both tragic and humorous, are still being told as the years roll by.

Although local people in many instances suffered untold hardships, they gladly shared their stores of food and clothing with those less fortunate in other cities and several car loads were sent out to relieve distress elsewhere.

Fishermen were out in full force last Sunday afternoon. I heard a number of stories—but didn't see any fish. One unlucky individual fell in the canal, but couldn't make the story "stick" with the Mrs. when he got home.

Your mother Eire is always young. Dew e'er shining and twilight gray;

Though grey fall from you and love decay,

Burning in fires of a slanderous tongue.

Come, heart, where hill is heaped upon hill;

For there the mystical brotherhood Of sun and moon and hollow and wood

And river and stream work out their will;

And God stands winding His lonely horn,

And time and the world are ever in flight;

And love is less kind than the gray twilight,

And hope is less dear than the dew of the morn.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

REVISED 1935 SCORING
THE INTERNATIONAL BRIDGE LAWS, 1932, have been amended, to go into effect March 31, 1935. Naturally, the most important changes are in scoring. These are given below.

First no trump trick, 40 points. Each subsequent trick scores 30 points. Game remains 100 points. Spade and heart tricks remain 30 points each. Diamond and club tricks remain at 20 points each.

The 1927 values of slams have been restored, as follows: Small Slam, 500 points when not vulnerable, and 550 points when vulnerable; Grand Slam, 1500 points when not vulnerable, and 1800 points when vulnerable.

The premium for winning the rubber remains; 700 points when one side wins the first two games, 500 points when two out of three games have to be won.

Undertrick Penalties
Score Above Line

Not Vulnerable Vulnerable

Tricks Un- Un-
Down d/b'd d/b'd d/b'd d/b'd

1 50 100 100 200

2 100 300 200 500

3 150 500 300 800

4 200 700 400 1100

5 250 900 500 1400

6 300 1100 600 1700

The new code has in mind simplicity and reduction of losses to a side not having a fair share of high cards. For going down when not vulnerable, multiply the number of tricks down by 50. If vulnerable, multiply the number of tricks down by 100. For going down doubled, when not vulnerable the first trick costs 100 points, each subsequent trick costs 200 points; when vulnerable the first doubled trick costs 200 points, each subsequent trick costs 300 points.

Premiums for overtricks remain unchanged; if undoubled, the trick values, whether not vulnerable or vulnerable; if doubled, 100 points each when not vulnerable, or 300 points each when vulnerable. Of course redoubling doubles the 100 or 200 points awarded for each over-trick when doubled.

The penalty for a revoke remains unchanged. The penalty for looking at a card dealt to a partner is 50 points. If a player looks at a card dealt to him before completion of the deal there must be a new deal. A card exposed during play is no longer "subject to call"; it must be played at the first opportunity. To understand all the lesser changes in the laws each player should provide himself with a copy of the full text, which should be obtainable at any book store.

As should have been done, the rights of declarer's partner to protect himself have been restored, provided he does not intentionally look at a card in any other player's hand.

In general, the new code is simpler and better than the old one, even if there appears to be no reason for altering some of the old names for less simple ones.

What Home Medicine Chest Should Have as Contents

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE AVERAGE home medicine chest may be roughly divided into those articles which are regularly used and a second group which may be called the "accumulation of the ages" consists in such things as capsules in a pasteboard box which Dr. Ly-sander gave father for a peculiar attack of jaundice that he had about seven years ago.

The first thing to do in preparing a family medicine chest is to clear out all the debris that nobody is using regularly. Most of the liquid preparations have probably been decomposed and become inert by this time so they will not be much of a loss.

In recommending what should be in a medicine chest, people usually say that the poisons should be put on the top shelves and nothing but poisons should be put there. As a matter of fact, the best thing to do is not to have any poisons in the medicine chest at all. The only one that possibly might be permissible is iodoform, and if you have a bottle of iodoform it should be in a bottle with a rough outside. If not, put three bands of adhesive around the bottle so that you will be able to feel it as well as see it, and know immediately that you have hold of a bottle containing poison.

Adhesive plaster, sterile gauze, gauze bandages, absorbent cotton, vaseline, and tincture of iodine, should be kept in a box (a cigar box size) by themselves and labeled "Surgical emergency".

Of drugs, there are only four classes which should be allowed in the medicine cupboard:

1. Cathartics—Which cathartics you have is not particularly important except that no household where there are children should have a cathartic pill containing strychnine—the so-called A. S. & B. pills—also, strychnine.

2. Hypnotics or Sleeping Potions—In the form of the barbiturates—veronal, medonal, alonal, amyral, etc.—we have extremely efficient sleep-producers. They are doubtfully habit-forming and, in my experience, not habit-forming at all for 90 per cent of the population. 3. Ointments—Some ointments for external use in case of irritation may be considered a part of the family medicine chest. Zinc oxide ointment and ammoniated mercury ointment are both official and should cover all requirements.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

A stirring, well-made and interesting story of modern people, with an unusual plot slant, Paramounts "Behold My Wife," opens tonight at the Cliftona Theatre, with Sylvia Sidney starred and Gene Raymond, the blonde adonis of the screen, in the principal featured role.

Even to those of you who have become accustomed to seeing the beautiful Miss Sidney in a variety of exacting and difficult character roles, it will be a surprise to see her straightforward and thoroughly convincing rendition of an Indian girl in "Behold My Wife."

Marries for Revenge
"Behold My Wife," which was directed by Mitchell Leisen from a screen story by Grover Jones and Vincent Lawrence, draws its story from the hypothesis that a wealthy boy, frustrated in his intention to marry a girl, would attempt to revenge himself on his meddling family.

Spencer Tracy, in his four years in Hollywood, has been one of the hardest working actors in the screen capital. In that time, he has played in 20 pictures, an average of five per year.

Library Has Many Books Of Interest on "Nature"

Reports of the first wildflowers are coming in; hepaticas were brought to the Circleville High school on Monday, and William Weldon found trailing arbutus in Hocking-co on Sunday.

Pikaway-co has long been noted for its naturalists, and from the interest shown by members of the high school classes in biology, taught by Miss Hilder, and by some of the younger pupils in the grades, the number of lovers and students of nature is increasing.

A beautiful book added to the Circleville Public Library during 1934, was "Wild Flowers", by Homer D. House. This book is illustrated with hundreds of colored photographs, and is most useful in identifying flowers. Britton and Brown's "Illustrated Flora of the northern United States and Canada, is more extensive and scientific. These two books are for reference use only, but the library owns a number of other excellent wild flower books, which are available for home use.

Other books added during the past year to supplement the library's older collection have been:

ATWOOD—Civic and economic biology.

BEARD—American boys' book of bugs, butterflies & beetles.

BRONSON—Fingerlings.

BRONSON—Poliwiggles' progress.

BUTLER—Along the shore.

CHEESEMAN—Growth of living things.

DISRAELI—Seeing the unseen.

DRILL FAVORED BY OHIO SENATE

COLUMBUS, March 27—The Ohio senate, Tuesday, by a record vote of 22-4 supported compulsory military training at Ohio State university. The vote came on a resolution urging its continuance and commending the trustees of the university for their stand in its favor.

SUSPECT JAILED

COLUMBUS, March 27—A man who gave his name as Frank A. Williams but who is believed to have many aliases, was arrested today by city detectives. It is believed the United States department of justice wants him for investigating a federal officer.

OHIO NEEDS MORE CONCRETE ROADS

'Twas A HARD WINTER FOR ROADS

With the spring thaw many roads—of materials that can't take it—have become almost impassable from "frost boils," "honey pots," ruts, bumps and chuck-holes.

Soon you will see load restriction, warning and detour signs—while repair crews spend the equivalent cost of miles of needed new pavements!... But on concrete roads, please notice, there was no "spring break-up." Year after year concrete roads can take it—with lowest maintenance.

Twelve months a year concrete carries you swiftly, safely, economically, saving gas, oil, tires and car wear every mile you drive.

Library Has Many Books Of Interest on "Nature"

Reports of the first wildflowers are coming in; hepaticas were brought to the Circleville High school on Monday, and William Weldon found trailing arbutus in Hocking-co on Sunday.

Pickaway-co has long been noted for its naturalists, and from the interest shown by members of the high school classes in biology, taught by Miss Hitler, and by some of the younger pupils in the grades, the number of lovers and students of nature is increasing.

A beautiful book added to the Circleville Public Library during 1934, was "Wild Flowers", by Homer D. House. This book is illustrated with hundreds of colored photographs, and is most useful in identifying flowers. Britton and Brown's "Illustrated Flora of the northern United States and Canada, is more extensive and scientific. These two books are for reference use only, but the library owns a number of other excellent wild flower books, which are available for home use.

Other books added during the past year to supplement the library's older collection have been: ATWOOD—Civic and economic biology. BEARD—American boys' book of bugs, butterflies & beetles. BRONSON—Fingerfins. BRONSON—Polliwaggle's progress. BUTLER—Along the shore. CHEESEMAN—Growth of living things. DISRAELI—Seeing the unseen.

"KNOT HOLE" GANG TO BE FORMED HERE

Red Birds Make Offer Available to All Youths of County of 9-17 Years

This story is for boys between ages of nine and 17—and their dads.

The Columbus Red Birds are extending their "Knot Hole" gangs to surrounding cities and counties this year and Circleville and Pickaway-co have been included. All youths between these ages are eligible for membership. All they have to do is sign their name and address on the registration slip, receive their registration card a few days later, and attend the Columbus baseball games on "Knot Hole" days.

There is no charge for any part of the registration. The expansion plan has been worked out by W. D. Griffith, publicity man for the association champions, and hundreds of boys are expected to be enrolled.

First is April 20

The first "Knot Hole" gang day is April 20 and Saturday, March 30, has been set as registration day. All boys who want to enroll should put in an appearance in the editorial rooms of The Herald office Saturday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 4. Their names will be taken then sent to the Red Bird offices in Columbus, and a few days later their membership cards will be returned and will be available.

These membership cards are not souvenirs but are actual tickets to the ball games on "Knot Hole" gang days. All boys who get them are urged to attend the games.

After the first date, April 20, "Knot Hole" gang days will be held each Saturday that the team is at home until June 15 and on each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday thereafter except on holidays and when night games are held.

Since the Red Bird club is making this "Knot Hole" play available, it is hoped that many local youths—and those of surrounding towns, too, will sign up.

Don't forget; you may register in The Herald editorial rooms from 2 to 4 o'clock on Saturday.

BIRDS DEFEATED AT WORLDS CHAMPS

AVON PARK, Fla., March 27—The World Champion St. Louis Cardinals had strutted their wares before a record-breaking crowd here today by clowning through a nine inning game with their Columbus Red Birds for a 25 to 18 victory.

Mayor Henry Worley of Columbus, O., tossed the first ball and from then on the Cards took over the show. Attempts to compile a boxscore were given up after the sixth inning after Manager Frank Frisch began making substitutions with no regard to the proper positions of the players.

AVERILL'S HOMER BEATS GIANT NINE

NEW ORLEANS, March 27—With the ninth inning homer of Earl Averill still ringing in their ears, the Cleveland Indians and the New York Giants were to move the scene of their series to Pensacola today after the Tribe routed the Terrymen, 9 to 8 yesterday. The Cleveland hitters, who were notoriously weak against minor league pitching in early exhibition games, opened up yesterday and rapped out 17 hits for a total of 32 bases.

RED SOX BLANKED

TAMPA, Fla., March 27—With a shut-out victory over the Boston Red Sox tucked away, the National League Cincinnati Reds returned to their training camp today the fourth game of their series with the Toronto Maple Leafs this afternoon. Gene Schott and Leroy Herrmann pitched the Reds to the 5 to 0 win over Boston, while their teammates collected nine hits.

Chillicothe's Tracksters Again Seek District Fame

By Marty Chandler

CHILICOTHE, Mar. 27—Coach Tom Vernia, after looking over the current crop of track and field candidates, including eight lettermen, today opined that chances are "very fair" for Chillicothe high school retaining its district championship at Athens, May 11th.

The title, incidentally, has been won by Chillicothe three times in the last five years, so, really, there wasn't anything particularly startling in the track mentor's prognostication.

Boys Hopeful

"The boys," Vernia added, "are about 100 strong and are looking for a good season." Among the lettermen, Vernia has Bill Sheridan and Jack Wiseman, mile and half mile district champs respectively.

John Knecht, former district champ in the 100 and 220, who will be trying again this season, and throwing the discus as well.

Hamm, high and low hurdle district titlist who appears to be as good as over.

Jim Strausbaugh and Gene McCollister, broad-jumpers; Jim Strausbaugh and Corby Lynch, dashes; Bill Anderson is out to run the 440 again.

In addition to these letter men, about 30 candidates have reported, or will report soon.

Coach Vernia said his schedule is incomplete as yet, but he expects to have at least three home meets carded.

Football Opens
Sixty-one boys answered the initial call for spring football, Monday, Coach Vernia announced. They were issued equipment, assigned lockers and then sent through a short work-out with emphasis on starting position, and other fundamentals.

"It's a nice looking crop of boys," the coach announced and he appeared to be quite enthusiastic as he said it.

Two After Four Letters
Don Henry is bidding fair to be a four-sport man—He has won football, basketball and track letters and is now out for golf—John Jenkins, too, may make four letters; basketball, track, baseball and golf.

Big Spring Turn-outs
Forty-five graders have reported at Washington C. H. for spring drill and more are expected to come out—Chillicothe reports a big squad and so do a number of other schools—Ohio State has high hopes for the grid season and three athletes are expected to play big parts in addition to the veterans—They are Jim Karcher, a mighty good guard; Jim McDonald and Joe Williams, backfield stars from Springfield and Barbortoe—Coach Schmidt has his hopefuls handling the ball in mid-October form.

aggressive siege, bombarding the Committee with demands that it restore the original administrative features of the bill.

This committee refused to do. Finally its members became so irked that they demanded Miss Perkins' exclusion from their conference with the President on the measure.

Miss Perkins' trouble with the Senate Labor Committee is over the Wagner Labor Disputes Bill. Testifying before that committee, she declared in favor of the measure. But she demanded a number of changes, chiefly an amendment putting the permanent Labor Relations Board under her department instead of being an independent body as the bill provides.

This is opposed by Senator Bob Wagner, author of the bill, Francis Biddle and Lloyd Garrison, present and former chairmen, respectively, of the National Labor Relations Board.

They contend that the board must be completely independent, and not subject to possible political interference and domination under the Labor Department.

Miss Perkins' persistence has caused a sharp split between her and the liberal sponsors of the bill. They are openly accusing her of endangering its chances of enactment.

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, but taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, enabling when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Pa... The Civilian Conservation Corps celebrates its second birthday April 5... Cameramen say that RFC Chairman Jesse Jones is the town's best subject for a photograph. "His skin is in good condition," they say, "and it picks up the high-lights"... Huey Long, is a devotee of a lunch room in Washington, where, about 9:30 o'clock any evening, he can be seen striding in with his body guard to have a bowl of chili... Labor Secretary Frances Perkins remains a difficult camera subject. Entering the Washington Hotel on the occasion of the Vice-President's dinner, she saw a news photographer with his camera raised. Quickly she put her handkerchief over her eyes. The cameraman shot nevertheless, and the resulting photo was used by several papers. Next time she encountered a waiting camera, she halted and said resignedly, "All right, go ahead and take it."

A tip has reached members of the Securities Exchange Commission that Wall Street, encouraged by the recent flood of anti-New Deal court decisions, is preparing to challenge the constitutionality of the SEC Act... Seventy per cent of the letters now being received by members of Congress demanding enactment of the Townsend old-age pension plan are coming from small town businessmen... BRUNO WOULD BE TESTED BY LIE DETECTOR

Wife Undergoes Similar Examination On Tour; Man to Die, Attorney Says

TRENTON, N. J., March 27.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann "will be glad to submit" to a lie detector test as to his guilt or innocence, Egbert Rosenkrantz, one of his attorneys, let it be known today.

Hauptmann, doomed to forfeit his life in the electric chair at the state prison here as the convicted slayer of the Lindbergh child, "would be shown to be telling the truth," Rosenkrantz said.

If such a test were made, and the detector showed his client to be telling the truth, the attorney continued, the result would be used as the basis for an application for a new trial.

The comments on the lie detector test came from Rosenkrantz after he learned Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, at present on a lecture tour of the middle west, had submitted herself to such a test at Northwestern university's crime detection school in Chicago, yesterday.

"It's marvelous. We've got to use it for Richard," Mrs. Hauptmann is reported to have said after the test.

Speaking before the Rotary club of Atlanta City there last night, Assistant Attorney General Robert L. Peacock, who assisted in the prosecution of Hauptmann at Flemington, expressed the opinion Hauptmann would die in the electric chair, as he was sure the conviction would be affirmed upon appeal.

"Bruno Richard Hauptmann," Peacock said, "is more guilty than the public knew."
